A lone chinchilla requires a great deal of attention and can become very attached to its owner. If you are unable to devote that much time to your pet, it is better to have two chinchillas than one lonely unhappy pet. Two chinchillas can play and interact and not be completely dependent on their owner. Care Sheet

However, chinchillas are not hard to take care of, and playtime doesn ’ t require much from you. Allow your chinchilla out of the cage once a day if possible. Clearly, it ’ s best to interact and play with your chinchilla during this time. However, it ’ s not 100% necessary.

Are Chinchillas Social?[Chinchilla Owners Should Know This]

Help your chinchilla keep up its routine by filling a container (or bath house) about two-inches deep with chinchilla dust (available at pet stores), then place your pet chin into it.

Andrew Bean, DVM of Pet Care Veterinary Hospital in Virginia Beach, VA , said dust bathing is both a behavioral outlet and an innate behavior which plays an important role in grooming.

The wild chinchilla is usually some variant of grey in color. However, selective breeding in captivity has produced a wide range of possible colors and fur types in our domestic chinchillas. With proper care and good genetics, chinchillas can live between 10-20 years. Below are some guidelines for basic chinchilla care.

Chinchilla Facts | Humble Acres Chinchillas | New York
Chinchillas need a good-quality diet meant for chinchillas to stay healthy. Their digestive system is designed for foods very high in fiber, so a good high fiber diet and plenty of grass hay is the cornerstone of a good chinchilla diet. Feeding them an inappropriate diet can cause serious digestive upsets and health problems.

Chinchilla Cage Chinchillas need a cage that will provide them with space to run, climb and jump. The minimum size for one chinchilla should be 24-36 " x 18-24 " x 24 " (WxDxH). Ideally, chinchilla cages should have at least two levels or stories. Chinchillas love to have room to play and explore, so no cage is too big.
